Contents

Prediciting astronomical seeing in the UK
A rapid roll-out Newtonian shelter for a dedicated planetary instrument
Solar chromospheric darkenings around active areas
The mean density of the Earth
Y973 Cygni – an overlooked semi-regular variable?
Observations of the recently discovered dwarf nova IRXS J053234.9+624755 during the 2005 March superoutburst
The Zeeman effect observed with a spectrophelioscope
Lunar domes: a generic classification of the dome near Valentine located at 10.26°E and 31.89°N

Index to volume 115 facing

Notes and News
From the President: the excitement and awe of astronomy
Calling all new members
Solar Section
Newcastle and North Tyneside light the way
Mars in 2005: first interim report
Aurora Section
Tom Boles bags the first supernova of 2006
The Asteroids and Remote Planets Section
Observing the planetary nebula NGC 1514

Letters
‘Centenaries for 2006’
Richard Baum and the Walter H. Haas Award
Slides of recent comets and other phenomena
The brightest feature on the Moon?
The worsening curse of light pollution
Proliferation of local solar eclipses
Observing the aurora from the UK

Meetings
Special General and Ordinary Meetings, 2005 March

Observers’ Forum
The Variable Star Section CCD target list
Two more UK near Earth asteroid discoveries
Annular solar eclipse, 2005 October 3

Reviews
Planetary geology: an introduction (Vita–Finzi)
The Hatfield SCT lunar atlas (Cook)

BAA Update
Obituary: John Louis Perdrix, 1926–2005
Obituary: John Louis Perdrix, 1926–2005

Sky notes for February & March

Membership information
Notice board
Small advertisements
Officers and Council

On the cover
Dust in the ‘Eye of Mars’. Mars Section Director Dr Richard McKim supplied this montage of images by Clay Sherrod and Damian Peach of the recent perihelic opposition and dust storm. See page 6 for full details.